Job Specification

Master Mariner

Founded in 1903, Brookes Bell is a leading multi-disciplinary technical and scientific consultancy serving the marine and energy sectors.

We investigate, troubleshoot, and advise on a broad range of marine and energy matters and enjoy a reputation for being the 'go-to' firm for casualty investigation, forensic analysis, technical dispute resolution and expert witness work. Our reputation has been built upon exceptional, independent service, and that service is only possible by having the best people in our team.

Working for Brookes Bell as a technical investigator is an exciting and unique proposition. Every job is different as our experts get to the bottom of disputes from the very start of a case potentially through to litigation. If you are looking for a routine job sitting in an office, then Brookes Bell probably isn't for you.

Working for Brookes Bell is an incredible opportunity where no two days are the same and with the unique nature of the work providing an exciting and rewarding career.

Our roles provide you with the opportunity to see a job through from beginning to end – collecting evidence, investigating forensic and technical information, writing expert reports and potentially providing evidence in Court if the job leads to litigation – all offering unparalleled job satisfaction. In addition, our work often comes with the chance to travel to all corners of the world.

Brookes Bell is currently recruiting for Master Mariners who can join the team in the UK (Glasgow, London or Liverpool), Singapore, Shanghai or the US (Houston) with the aim of the role to carry out forensic investigations of marine casualties and associated incidents globally, either on an individual basis or as part of a wider team in Brookes Bell. If you are looking for a career change and want to work for the best, then get in touch today recruitment@brookesbell.com.

Duties & Responsibilities:

- To carry out investigations and assessments relating to Master Mariner matters
- To perform onsite surveys relating to Master Mariner matters
- To produce letters and reports detailing the findings of their investigations and/ or attendances
- To provide expert evidence in court/ arbitration in relation to their written expert testimony
- To provide advice/ support to clients in mariner related matters
- To follow company operating procedures
- To carry out and assist in marketing activities
- To assist in discipline related and group business development initiatives
- Any other adhoc duties which fall within the individual's abilities

Person Specification:

- Qualified Master Mariner, ideally with Command experience
- Highly motivated and proactive individual with excellent attention to detail
- Good communication skills
- Good IT skills, including Microsoft Office (Word, Excel, Outlook)
- Must be based within commuting distance of one of Brookes Bell's offices.
- Must be fluent in English, able to converse on technical matters and write reports.
- Must be willing to travel internationally at short notice
- Able to work alone on site, without direct supervision.

Thomas Miller is committed to considering candidates from a broad array of diverse experiences and backgrounds. Whether you are new to our industry sector, returning to work after a gap in employment, simply looking to make a transition or taking the next step in your career path, we will be glad to hear from you. If you believe that you could succeed in this role, even if you may not meet all of the qualification requirements, we encourage you to apply.

We welcome applications from all. If you require any reasonable adjustments to participate in the application or selection process, please contact us at recruitment@thomasmiller.com.